3 ways to enhance your cloud journey: break, prepare, and optimize your apps in Azure

03 November 2021

At our Microsoft Ignite conference this week, we're sharing new ways to continue to enhance your cloud adoption journey by announcing the preview of Azure Chaos Studio—a fully managed experimentation service to help you track, measure, and mitigate faults with controlled chaos engineering, systemically improving the resilience of your cloud applications. We continue to build a better, easier, and more comprehensive approach to guide your cloud environment preparation, with Azure landing zone, without losing sight of the application to be deployed.

Powering all your applications from cloud to edge with Azure infrastructure

03 November 2021

Organizations are transforming from cloud to edge, migrating and optimizing existing workloads, building new cloud-native apps, unlocking new scenarios at the edge, or combining these strategies to meet their full range of business needs. Microsoft is committed to helping them at every step of the way with continuous technology innovation. Today, we're announcing product updates and enhancements across the Azure infrastructure portfolio to support the rapid business transformation underway.

New investments to help you accelerate your Azure migration and modernization journey

03 November 2021

Last year many organizations turned to the cloud to survive disruptions caused by the pandemic. Businesses are now charting the course for their recovery and further accelerating their cloud momentum to drive faster app innovation, optimize infrastructure costs, and enhance security posture. This week at Microsoft Ignite, we're announcing expanded program and product investments to help customers accelerate their migration and modernization journey with Azure.
